MONDAY, DEC. 3, 1881.

IN OFFICES OF THE NEXT HOUSE.

After the adjournment of the Legislature, the Republican caucus met on Monday at the sixteenth ballot count. The caucus was held at the residence of Mr. Warren Kiefer, of Springfield, Ohio, for speaker of the House of Representatives. His principal competitors were Messrs. Hiscok, Reed and Kassen, all of whom had considerable influence, and had recently hoped that their own brilliant Congressmen from the First District might carry off the prize. As it was a very complimentary vote for a candidate who had made no special effort, and who had been a member of the Legislature for only one year, the caucus was a surprise to many. THE LAW OF INSANITY IN CRIMINAL CASES.

IMPORTANT AND FORTHRIGHT CHANGE IN JUDICIAL DECISIONS.

In the case of Mrs. Coleman, a newspaper editor in New York, for the murder of Geo. T. Cole, whom she shot on the street with a pistol, the defense was that Cole had drugged and wronged her, and that when her husband, who was a member of the Legislature, was killed, she was in a state of insanity. The case was tried in the Supreme Court, and the jury found her guilty. The case was then appealed to the Court of Appeals, where the defense was that Mrs. Coleman was insane at the time of the crime. The Court of Appeals, in a decision which was a landmark in the history of the law of insanity in criminal cases, held that Mrs. Coleman was insane at the time of the crime, and therefore acquitted her.

JUDGE DAY'S CHARGE.

In the case of Mrs. Coleman, Judge Day, in his charge to the jury, said that the law of insanity in criminal cases was a very difficult one, and that the jury must be careful to distinguish between insanity and mere weakness of mind. He said that the law of insanity in criminal cases was a very difficult one, and that the jury must be careful to distinguish between insanity and mere weakness of mind. THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

PLAINTS ON PLAINTS.

(From the Kennebec Journal.)

At the close of his first and last annual message, Governor Plaford, in enjoining the Legislature to pass laws to enforce the Constitution under which we live, quoted these words from one of Cicero's orations: "The wonderful system of government which we have received from our fathers, is a masterpiece of wisdom."

In the same message Governor Plaford speaks of "men ready to tear down the very temple of liberty itself by public opinion were not occupied by men of their choice." We know of no man more fit to be placed in such a position than a Governor who respects the Constitution and the laws of the State.

But, happily, gentlemen of the jury, that is not the law; and whoever such ideas of insanity are applied to a citizen case as that of the accused, they have been, from the beginning, not through the legal insanity of the accused, but through the emotional insanity of the jury.

I have felt it my duty in this case to give you my views of the law of insanity as applied to the case of the accused, but I assure you, gentlemen, I have had no intention in doing so to affect your minds in determining the facts of the case to which you are applying the law. The prisoner is entitled to a consideration of the facts of the case by you, uninfluenced by any expression of opinion in respect of them by the Court.

CONGRESS.

Congress will meet to-day at noon and we expect to receive the President's Message by telegraph so as to present it in our issue of to-morrow morning.

EDITING GEN. GARFIELD'S WORKS.

President B. A. Hissale, of Hiram, O., makes public the following statement: "I have been very much interested in the editing of Gen. Garfield's works, and I have been very much interested in the editing of Gen. Garfield's works, and I have been very much interested in the editing of Gen. Garfield's works."
